Lecture presented by:

Mary Ellen Weber, Ph.D., M.B.A.
Astronaut, STS-70 and STS-101

Dr. Weber will hold a 30 minute autograph session immediately following the formal program. Details to come ~ stay tuned!*

Dr. Weber was a NASA Astronaut for ten years and is the veteran of two Space Shuttle flights. She is among the youngest Astronauts to ever venture into space, having traveled 297 earth orbits and 7.8 million miles. In 2000, she flew aboard Atlantis on mission STS-101, a pioneering and critical early construction mission for the International Space Station. She flew aboard Discovery in 1995 on mission STS-70, launching a $200 million communications satellite and performing groundbreaking biotechnology experiments. Dr. Weber earned her M.B.A. from Southern Methodist University, a Ph.D. in physical chemistry from the University of California in Berkeley, and a B.S. in chemical engineering from Purdue University. In 2003, she joined the University of Texas Southwest Medical Center in Dallas, Texas, becoming Vice President for Government Affairs and Policy.
